Russian Commander Wounded in Leg -Thousands of Japs Perish Charging Over Mines in Effort to Carry the Place by Storm.

LONDON, Nov. 3.-A despatch to a news agency from St. Handleap: for all ages: $2.500 added; mile and a Petersburg says Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, commander of the Russian troops at Port Arthur, is reported wounded in the leg.

> LONDON, Nov. 3.-Scattered reports from the vicinity of Port Arthur indicate that the Japanese started to-day on a frantic effort to take the stronghold. It is the desire of Gen. Nogi to report to the Mikado on the anniversary of the birth of the latter to-day that the first great step of the is serving a life term in Sing Sing. war has been accomplished.

It is a singular fact that to-day is the tenth anniversary of the ascension of the present Czar to the Russian throne. To lose Port Arthur on such an anniversary would be considered by Gen. Stoessel and the handful of men he has left a crowning disgrace. In all the desperate and frenzied fighting that has characterized the war between Russia and Japan P1. 8h. 2 7-10 1-3 5-2 4-5 1-3 5-5 7-10 1-3 15 4 9 10 8 there has been none to compare in deadliness with that around Port Arthur to-day.

Prepared for the sacrifice of any number of lives, the Japanese are hurling column after column at the fortresses. It is reported that five of the warships in the harbor have been destroyed by the Japanese shells and that most of the big guns of the defenders have been silenced.

The chief reliance of the Russians is on their elaborate system of mines. During the recess in hostilities, Gen. Stoessel's men have been digging and burrowing with the energy and secrecy of moles, and caverns loaded with death-dealing explosives stretch out and intertwine all about the defensive Special Carrying President Gaypositions.

When the last of the mines is exploded there still remains to Gen. Stoessel the storehouses and ammunition in the heart of the town, where he will have to make his last stand.
